

APPENDIX: UNC LIBRARY MATERIALS RELATED TO ASIAN AMERICAN STUDIES

Part 1: Southern Historical Collection, University Archives, and Southern Folklife collection

Part 2: Rare Book Collection, Wilson Library

Part 3: North Carolina Collection

Part 1

This document is a representative sample of items in the Southern Historical Collection, University Archives, and Southern Folklife collection related to Asian American life. A search across finding aids was conducted for general terms (“Asian”, “Asian American”). Some individual nationalities were also searched: Chinese, Japanese, Russian, Indian, Korean, Thai, Siamese, Vietnamese, Montagnard, Bangladeshi, Pakistani, etc. as country names (Vietnam), nationalities (Vietnamese), as well as part of phrases like “Vietnamese American”, “from Vietnam” as well as historic country names no longer in use (Ceylon, Burma, Siam etc.).

The items below fall loosely into two categories: items from the University Archives focusing on student life here at UNC (primarily in the form of student organization records), and items from the Southern Historical Collection with ties to Asian American life. Items from the SHC include a number of oral histories, as well as items found within larger collections that aren’t specifically related to Asia, but have related items included.

I. University Archives

A number of collections in the University Archives contain records about Asian American student groups, starting in the 1980’s. Materials might include fliers, applications for funding, meeting minutes, and other items about Asian American student life. A search for ‘Asian’ and individual nationalities (ie. Chinese, Korean, Indian) revealed several relevant collections—a few organizations for each collection are highlighted, but a more thorough review of the finding aids may reveal more groups identified by acronyms or other names not explicitly containing search terms (such as Asian-interest fraternities and sororities like Lambda Phi Epsilon and alpha Kappa Delta Phi).

Additional search terms: “student groups”, “student associations”, “student organizations”

Student Government of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Records, 1919-2011, #40169

II. Southern Historical Collection: Oral Histories

Southern Oral History Program Collection, 1973-2015, collection #04007

<http://finding-aids.lib.unc.edu/04007/>

The Southern Oral History Program collects interviews with Southerners who have made significant contributions to various fields of human endeavor. In addition, the Program undertakes special projects with the purpose of rendering historically visible those whose experience is not reflected in traditional written sources. Interviews are conducted by Program staff, graduate students, faculty members, and consultants. The Program also serves as a collecting agency, accepting donations of tapes and transcripts of interviews conducted by other researchers.

K.2.17. Listening for a Change: Asian Voices. Interviews available online here.

An oral history project documenting the immigration stories of South Asians in Chapel Hill and Carrboro, N.C. The project was conceived by Andrew Jilani and funded in November 1998 by the North Carolina Humanities Council. Folder K-xvii contains a copy of South Asian Voices: Oral Histories of South Asian Immigrants in Chapel Hill and Carrboro, North Carolina, a book based on the interviews conducted as part of this project.

R.3. Special Research Projects: Hindu Community in the Raleigh-Durham Area.

Interviews available online here.

Jennifer Saunders conducted interviews for her master's thesis at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill about the development of the Hindu community in the Raleigh-Durham area and the role of the Hindu temple in this process. Interviews focus on the change and development of the Indian community in the United States, especially within North Carolina. The role of the temple receives special emphasis as a place where community can be built and a site where diverse Asian religious and cultural traditions can integrate with each other.

R.8. Special Research Projects: North Carolina Communities: Montagnard Refugees from Vietnam. Interviews available online here.

Interviews by Thomas Pearson examining life histories of Montagnard refugees from Vietnam who have settled in North Carolina.

Oral histories of low income and minority women, 1970s-1992, collection # 04608

http://finding-aids.lib.unc.edu/04608

Transcriptions of interviews in the Oral Histories of Low Income and Minority Women project of the Southwest Institute for Research on Women at the University of Arizona in collaboration with the Schlesinger Library on the History of American Women at Radcliffe College with funding from the Ford Foundation. The fifty-six interviews, with transcriptions ranging in length from 17 to over 2,000 pages, were conducted by Fran Leeper Buss during the 1970s and 1980s. Interviewees, some of whom chose to remain anonymous, include three Asian-Americans, twelve African-Americans, and six Native-Americans.

Earl Warren Oral History Project Transcripts, 1969-circa 1978, collection #12011

<http://finding-aids.lib.unc.edu/12011/>

The collection consists of over 50 bound volumes of photocopies of transcripts of about 150 oral history interviews from the Earl Warren Oral History Project, done at the University of California, Berkeley, 1969-circa 1978

VOLUMES 29-30.

II. Southern Historical Collection: Other items

Mangum Family Papers, 1777-1993, collection #483

<http://finding-aids.lib.unc.edu/00483/>

In the 1910s and 1920s, there are scattered letters from Mangum relatives, including from A. W. Mangum, Jr., who wrote from Bellingham, Wa., about an anti-Hindu riot (actually Sikhs working in nearby lumber mills).

Lawrence Davis Tyson Papers, 1837-1933.

<http://finding-aids.lib.unc.edu/01173/>

Industrialist of Knoxville, Tenn.; brigadier general of the 59th Brigade, 30th Division in World War I; and U.S. senator, 1925-1929. Chiefly family correspondence, World War I military communications, and U.S. Senate records... In his letters to Bettie, Lawrence was chiefly preoccupied with his feelings for her and often wrote of the social life of the fort. Occasionally, however, he did refer to military actions against the Indians, labor conflicts between white miners and Chinese railroad workers (see especially Folder 13, 20 September 1885), and his work as a judge advocate in the military court.

Southerners for Economic Justice Records, 1977-2001

Southerners for Economic Justice (SEJ) was founded in 1976 during a successful campaign to help J. P. Stevens textile workers unionize. Since then, SEJ has focused on empowering the unemployed and working poor to develop community-based strategies to solve social problems associated with economic crisis. Beyond administrative records, other materials include an extensive collection of economic and social justice newsletters and photographs, including in Box 106 and 107, two newsletters of interest:
